AN AWFUL STORM.

Further Details of the Great Southern Hurricane.

A VAST AMOUNT OF DAMAGE.

From New Orleans to Florida the Gulf Coast Was Ravaged—A Wind Velocity of Eighty Miles an Hour—Many Lives Lost.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 3.—The storm has passed, and though the wires are still down, news is trickling into the city from the surrounding country, but it is not possible to give a fairly accurate estimate of the damage wrought by the fury of the elements on Sunday, Sunday night and Monday morning.

The damage done in the city and in the harbor will run considerably over a hundred thousands. The extremes of [illegible] estimates and exaggerated [illegible] so wide apart that it is difficult to approximate the loss in the country, the major portion of which is confined to the parishes of Jefferson and Plaquemine, and more particularly the latter.

The upper limit of the storm was not more than a dozen miles above the city. In the city the storm was not as severe as that of 1888. Here this year the sufferers were the shipping interests. The losses include the ferry-boat Louise Hanley, the steam launch [illegible] Grace Bitt, a steamboat and a fleet of loaded coal barges belonging to Pittsburg firms which all went down. Electric wire poles were toppled over, roads [illegible] and all electric lines in the city suffered great damage. West End the Revetment levee and railroad tracks were greatly damaged.

PLANTATIONS DAMAGED.

Pointe a la Hache, Bohemia and Prospect, towns in Plaquemine Parish, felt the brunt of the storm. Several houses were blown down and there was great terror felt by the residents, until the storm had spent its fury. The loss will be heavy. Mrs. La France and [illegible] were both killed in escaping from a home which was shivered by [illegible]. At the Empire mill, near Pointe a la Hache, a young mulatto woman was killed by falling timbers. Many [illegible] were bruised, but the dead list [illegible] as far as known, to the three [illegible]. Most of the plantation [illegible], sheds and fences suffered [illegible] thousands of dollars will have [illegible] in repairing them.

The orange crop of Plaquemine is [illegible] the extent of 200,000 to 300,000 [illegible]. A conservative estimate puts [illegible] year at 200,000. That was [before the] storm. It is feared that these [illegible] be cut down 50 per cent., [illegible] money loss of a quarter of a [illegible].

[illegible] Poydras plantation southwest of [illegible] blown down. No plantation [illegible]. What the loss will be depends on future conditions. If [illegible] period of favorable weather [illegible] freeze, the cane will have [illegible] and the loss will be comparatively small.

[illegible] Plaquemine has suffered a [illegible] much of it have been blown [illegible] much injured.

RAILROADS TIED UP.

[illegible] Louisville and Nashville railroad [illegible]. A mile of its tracks at [illegible] has been wrecked. The [illegible] Pearl river ridge is badly [illegible] the roadbed generally [illegible] the wind having blown the [illegible] of Lake Borgne across the land [illegible] great volumes and velocity. No [illegible] arrived since Sunday. [illegible] trains are at work at the scene [illegible]. The company posted a [illegible] this morning saying it would [illegible] trains to-day. Efforts, however, [illegible] to transfer the government [illegible] by boat. It will be two or [illegible] before trains can come [illegible] and a week or more before the [illegible] in fair running order, and a [illegible] before the track and roadbed can [illegible] solid as it was before the [illegible].

[illegible] Beach railroad expect trains [illegible] Plaquemine to-night, and the [illegible] road also expects to move [illegible] to-night. The morning trains on [illegible] road did not materialize this [illegible]. The Queen and Crescent suffered little and all their trains are [illegible] as usual.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

[illegible] prominent residents of the city, [illegible] business men, were caught by [illegible] the fishing camps on the [illegible] Lookout and had a night of [illegible]. All the huts weathered the [illegible] one. There was no loss of [illegible]. The citizens who had been [illegible] at that point could not get home [illegible] the washout on the Louisville [illegible] and were brought to town [illegible] on a tug which crossed the [illegible]. On the way over the tug encountered a schooner, bottom up and two [illegible] dismasted and wrecked. It was [illegible] to learn if there had been [illegible] life, but is feared that there [illegible].

[illegible] number of the people of the [illegible] virtually quarantined at the re[illegible] on the Mississippi sound—They are [illegible] to get to town, owing to the damage to the bridges and the L. & N.

DEATH AT SEA.

[illegible] with the city is somewhat [illegible] off on account of the fallen [illegible] wires and poles.

[illegible] reaches here this evening from [illegible] that the winds blew eighty [illegible] hour there on Sunday night; [illegible] the mouth of the river, John Ca[illegible], the night watchman of the jetty [illegible], was drowned while attempting to cross the pass. It is thought [illegible] boat was shattered by the [illegible] steamer Eleid which was going [illegible]. The poor fellow's cries were [illegible] it was impossible to send a [illegible]. The steamer Eleid went to [illegible] the teeth of the gale, carrying [illegible] bar pilot, Captain Williams, [illegible] boat could venture along side to [illegible]. The signal service station [illegible] were blown down, but the [illegible] instruments of the United States [illegible] weathered the storm.

[illegible] Shell Beach, the club house was [illegible] and fishing camps damaged.

FLORIDA'S SHARE.

The Velocity and Force of the Wind at Pensacola.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 3.—The most destructive storm that Pensacola has experienced in twenty years began at 6 [illegible] yesterday morning and raged [illegible] increased fury until a late hour [illegible] afternoon. The nearest approach to yesterday's gale was the storm [illegible]. The storm had been brewing [illegible] Saturday. Hard rains fell Saturday afternoon and Sunday, but a storm [illegible] tropical intensity was not expected [illegible]. Yesterday the wind freshened and the rain increased in force. By [illegible] a terrific southeast gale was blowing which continued at the rate of fifty five miles an hour until noon, when the wind shifted to the south and increased to sixty miles. Between 2 and 3 p. m. it began to shift to the southwest and at 2:45 p. m. reached its climax, the wind at this time reaching a velocity of sixty six miles an hour. The rain fell in torrents and was swept in blinding sheets through the streets. At the bay front people stood in a drenching rain watching the elements in their work of destruction.

No loss of life has been reported, but upon every street uprooted trees, broken fences and roofless buildings testify to the storm's force. At Baylen Street wharf a large building used by Warren & Co. for smoking fish was blown into the bay. It was filled with cured fish and the loss will be great. On the same wharf a dwelling and its contents was lifted from its foundation and dropped into the bay.

The greater damage was on the bay. The Portuguese bark Josephine and the Norwegian bark Wilhelm were blown on the beach, one of the vessels in a dangerous position. The fishing smack Isabella is also on the beach.

Before the storm reached its height several steamships that were taking on cargoes raised steam and ran down to the lower bay where they had plenty of sea room. Every stick of timber in the bay was cast adrift, and is now strewn along the beach for miles.

Railroad communication is cut off. The mail train on the Pensacola and Atlantic road, which left here for Jacksonville yesterday morning at 6:30 could get no further than Bohemia on the bay shore and was compelled to return. The 1:35 p. m. train on the L. & N. encountered washouts and was compelled to return to the city. The only train reaching the city during the day was from the north at 4:30.

All telegraph communication was cut off before 10 o'clock yesterday, railroad companies' wires being down in every direction and no news of the storm could be sent out last night.

Pan-American Bimetallists.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—The big Armory hall, on the corner of Pine and Nineteenth streets, was the attraction of a multitude of men and a few women to-day, who are desirous of establishing closer relations between the Southern and Western States and Territories with the Republic of Mexico and various portions of South America. Colonel A. C. Fiske, president of the Pan-American Bimetallic association, called the convention to order. A count showed 175 delegates present, and of these about twenty-five are from Mexico, Central and South America.

After an address of welcome by Governor Stone, Governor Tillman of South Carolina was chosen temporary chairman. The usual committees on credentials, permanent organization etc., were appointed and the convention took a recess.

When the convention reassembled this afternoon the Committee on Credentials and Permanent Organization reported, Governor Lewelling of Kansas was selected for permanent chairman. President Fiske of the Bimetallic League was then introduced and made an exhaustive argument in favor of the unification of western interests.

The session was consumed in the appointment of committees as recommended by the various States and national delegations. The convention adjourned after this routine. The real work of the convention begins to-morrow. Inquiry among those representing the States elicits little as to the probable action of the convention on silver, taxation and other economic matters.

Colorado Agriculture.

DENVER, Oct. 3.—J. J. Gilligan, director of the Colorado weather service, reports killing frosts occurring Sept. 29 and Oct. 1 and 2, but the late crops have nearly all been secured. Considerable corn has not yet been cut in Huerfano county. The third alfalfa crop will be light. The corn yield will be below the average. The rains and snow during the latter part of the week will put the ground in good condition for fall plowing and seeding. The eastern part of the State has suffered from long drouth.

Over One Hundred Years.

ATCHISON, Kan., Oct. 3.—"Aunt Eliza" Porter, colored, doubtless the oldest woman in Kansas, is dead. She was born Aug. 16, 1792, in Kentucky.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3. For Colorado Partly cloudy; warmer in extreme northern portion; south to west winds.

THE BICYCLE WAS POISONED.

Fearful Effects of the Bite of a Large Rattlesnake on a "Bike."

To our ears there have come many wonderful rattlesnake stories, painted with the glowing colors of truthfulness, but never in our long experience has such a one as here related been reported.

It is an entirely modern snake story, and it relegates the old rusty tales out of sight. It truly belongs to the new era. It is a bicycle snake story—a regular safety, pneumatic tire snake story—a snake story that would make the hair rise on a tiger's back and make Bill Nye turn green with envy.

But it is a true snake story and was related to us by a young gentleman who is good looking and truthful. While telling the adventure to us his soft black eyes dilated and his black mustache bristled.

"I took a ride on my bicycle," said he, "on an embankment near Augusta. The sun was blazing down at a South African rate. Working on my trusty steed the way home, after a good long spin, suddenly my attention was drawn to an object in the distance of immense proportions. Coming nearer I soon saw that it was a large rattlesnake.

"Return I could not, neither was I willing if I could, and I supposed that by this time the snake had discovered me, for it lay sullenly in my path. As I approached nearer and nearer it coiled tighter and tighter for battle. On seeing this I of course formed my plan for action also. There was no escape, and as quick as lightning I rode over the rattler to rattle no more. His snakeship rebounded as if he were made of rubber.

"I glanced hastily over my shoulder and saw a disjointed mass. I then knew that I had killed the reptile. On arriving home I put my safety in its usual place.

"The next morning I wished to use it to take my usual exercise. On bringing it before the light I found the luster of the tubing faded away, and in its place there was a dark, dull, blue color overspreading my once magnificent and shining wheel. Since then the pneumatic tire has decayed so that I had to have it completely overhauled. The cause of the complete dilapidation of my pride of wheel is that the snake in its rage sank its poisonous fangs in the tire, thus causing the poison to spread all over the cycle.

"On going back to the scene of the combat a few days later I found the dried bones of my antagonist and 24 large rattles, the snake measuring exactly 8 feet and 6½ inches."—Millen Herald.

THE SENATE DEBATE

International Bimetallism Variously Considered.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S IDEA.

Senators Dolph and Palmer Differ as to What He Does Want—All Agree He Does Not Want More Silver Dollars.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The Senate was found to be this morning in its chronic no quorum condition, but after a roll call the attendance of forty-three Senators, the exact quorum was ascertained and the routine morning business was proceeded with.

After the routine morning business an amendment to the silver purchase repeal bill was offered by Mr. Morgan of Alabama. It revives the coinage act of 1837 and provides for the remission of 20 per cent. of import duties on goods imported from countries that admit standard silver dollars of the [illegible] and fineness as legal tender for all debts public and private.

The silver purchase repeal bill was taken up at 1:30 and Mr. Dolph of Oregon continued his speech of yesterday afternoon. He sent to the clerk's desk and had read extracts from President Cleveland's messages during his former administration giving his views upon the [illegible]. He said those extracts justified the statement that the success of the Democratic party, with such a candidate, was the verdict of the American people in favor of the discontinuance of the purchase of silver and of the coinage of silver dollars.

Mr. Teller of Colorado asked him what he thought the chances were (judging from the messages he had read) of any legislation friendly to silver during the present administration. Did he think there was any hope for such legislation unless it was attached to the repeal bill?

"If I cast my vote for the repeal of the silver purchase act, as I expect to do," Mr. Dolph replied, "I will not do it with the expectation that during the present administration there will be any other legislation concerning silver. I do not know a single utterance of President Cleveland's from the time of his first letter to Mr. Warner, of Ohio, before his first inauguration up to the present time that would lead any one to suppose that he had changed his position in relation to silver coinage, or that he did not stand to-day in favor of repeal of the Sherman law, and opposed to the further purchase of silver bullion and to the further coinage of silver dollars. I do not expect that he will recommend to Congress any legislation looking to the use of silver by the United States without the co-operation of other countries. And I do not expect that Congress could pass any act for the use of silver by this country alone that would receive his approval. But I understand that he would be in favor of what he considers a practical use of silver. The free coinage of silver is only practicable with an international agreement, by which the mints of all commercial countries of the world shall be open to the free coinage of silver at an agreed ratio."

Mr. Stewart of Nevada, with Mr. Dolph's consent, fortified his extracts by another one from the President's recent message declaring that the people are entitled to sound and honest money.

Mr. Teller, referring to an extract which Mr. Dolph had read yesterday from the report of Mr. Manning, the first Secretary of the Treasury in the first Cleveland administration in which Mr. Manning declared that there was no hope of an international agreement, asked Mr. Dolph whether there was any reason to suppose that the present executive would take any step to secure an international arrangement that would secure bimetallism throughout the world.

"I have no reason to suppose," Mr. Dolph replied, "that Mr. Cleveland has not always been earnestly in favor of an international agreement. I do not doubt the good faith of Mr. Cleveland. He is honest when he asserts, as I understand he has asserted from time to time, that he is in favor of bimetallism by an international agreement whereby the parity of both metals can be maintained."

"I did not suggest," said Mr. Teller, "that Mr. Cleveland was not a bimetallist, according to his definition of the term. What I want to know is whether there is anything in Mr. Cleveland's past history in connection with the question of bimetallism, which would indicate a desire on the part of the present administration to secure this world-wide agreement for open mints which the Senator speaks of."

"I know of nothing," Mr. Dolph replied, "which has been done under the present administration that would indicate that Mr. Cleveland either intends to renew efforts to secure an international agreement, or that he has changed his views in regard to an international agreement."

Here Mr. Palmer (Dem.) of Illinois, stepped into the arena for the debate, saying: "I am not authorized to speak for the President, but I have no doubt that the President regards it as essential that we settle our own policy before we invite other nations to a conference. I have no doubt that the President understands that—while we continue the purchase of silver, we are disabling ourselves by putting ourselves to a disadvantage in any attempt in adjusting bimetallism with foreign countries. I am quite certain that the President believes (but I am not authorized to make the statement) that so long as we continue the purchase of silver and undertake to support silver coinage we would appeal in vain to foreign governments to enter into any agreement to establish international bimetallism."

Mr. Dolph—I have been waiting with patience to have the Senator from Colorado (Mr. Teller) or some other Senator who believes as he does explain to the Senate how he can expect, with free coinage at 16 to 1, and with the price of silver as it is to-day, to avoid the operation of the universal and imperative law by which the better money is always driven from the country by the poorer money.

Mr. Teller—If the Senator from Oregon will tell me why we are now circulating $400,000,000 of silver dollars on an absolute parity with gold, and not redeeming it in gold, he will make one step in the direction of answering his own question.

Mr. Dolph—That is not so. We are maintaining our circulation of silver money (and a large amount of it) on a parity with gold, but we are doing it under a provision for its redemption in gold, by the receipt of silver for public duties, at the equivalency of gold.

There was considerable badgering over the question of "fiat money" between Senators Peffer, Teller, Jones of Nevada and Dolph. Then Mr. Allen of Nebraska got into the discussion and brought up the question of the Brussels conference. This allusion brought Mr. Allison of Iowa to his feet. Mr. Allison was one of the delegates to that conference; and he asserted, in contravention to a charge of conspiracy on the part of great capitalists, that Mr. Rothschild had taken the strongest position in favor of silver coinage. Not only, he said, had Mr. Rothschild taken that position, but the delegates from Great Britain and other countries had also been in favor of the utilization of both gold and silver, but they were not ready to adopt the coinage of silver in their respective countries. Mr. Allison added that the conference had adjourned for reasons which he had explained to the Senate recently, and that it had been then expected and was now expected by the European States that the conference would reconvene. For reasons, however, which he did not understand, the re-convening of the conference had been postponed from the 30th of May to November and so far from European governments not being interested in the subject there was not one of them which was not watching day by day every movement made in the United States. They were hoping that the American government would get them out of the dilemma by continuing the purchase of silver.

Mr. Dolph continued his speech and wound up by declaring as he said in the opening, that the operation of the Sherman law was not responsible for the [illegible] financial disturbance. But there was a large number of people in the United States who believed that it was, and therefore the safer course was to repeal it.

Mr. Power of Montana addressed the Senate in opposition to the repeal bill, asserting that no argument had been made that would justify the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law.

Mr. Palmer (Dem.) of Illinois said that after a session of eight weeks the inquiry arose whether the Senate would at any time dispose of the question before it, and whether any question could be disposed of by the Senate except by unanimous consent. He had examined the rules carefully and he confessed that he had not discovered any means by which the Senate could govern itself.

Mr. Palmer went on to discuss the repeal bill itself and argued in favor of its passage. In the course of his speech a discussion arose as to whether all the outstanding treasury notes were payable in gold, Mr. Palmer contending that they were, and Mr. Stewart contending that if this were so it was by authority, not of law, but of treasury rulings. Mr. Teller stated that he had taken sufficient interest in the question to go to the treasury to make inquiries on the subject, and had been informed by the Treasurer himself that no silver certificates had been paid in gold.

The discussion drifted into the question as to whether the fall in silver was synchronous with, and the cause of, the fall in the prices of wheat and cotton.

Mr. Teller asked Mr. Gray how he accounted for the fact that, when in [illegible] silver went to $1.2[illegible] an ounce, wheat went to $1.29 a bushel.

Mr. Gray said he accounted for it by the fact that the wheat supply justified the high prices.

Mr. Teller—I will show the Senator before we get through this debate that he is in error there.

Mr. Palmer asked why wheat should follow silver, rather than silver follow wheat.

Mr. Stewart undertook to answer that question and went to India to get facts for his explanation, which was not very clear. Mr. Palmer expressed the hope that his answer was satisfactory to the Senator from Nevada, but for himself he confessed that he did not understand it. [Laughter.]

Mr. Palmer went on to argue that the free coinage of silver would drive out the gold, so that instead of the country having two metals, it would have but one. Finally he came back to the point where he had started—the impotency of the Senate.

Mr. Teller inquired whether the Senate had not been able to make all proper laws up to the present time?

"It has," Mr. Palmer said, "and I am astonished at it. Nobody believes more profoundly than I do in the value of the Senate. But I must confess standing here to-day in its presence that it has no power to act."

Mr. Dubois of Idaho—I agree with almost all the remarks of the distinguished Senator; but I think that the fact is that whenever there is a strong sentiment in favor of any measure in this country, the Senate will immediately respond to it, but the Senate knows that it is not going to pass this bill. There is no sentiment in the Senate in favor of it. I honestly believe that there are not ten Senators here who actually desire to pass this unconditional repeal bill. If there was a strong sentiment here in favor of it, the Senate would pass it. There is a manufactured sentiment outside, but that does not exist in this chamber.

Mr. Voorhees of Indiana evidently chafing under the sting concealed in Mr. Dubois's remarks, rose and said:

"If the Senator from Idaho and those he represents will give us a chance to vote, we will answer this suggestion, not by ten, but by four or five times ten Senators, who will vote for the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act."

"I say to the Senator from Indiana," Mr. Dubois said defiantly, "that you have the power to resort to the means which you say exist, and the minute you undertake to resort to unusual methods, it will be demonstrated to the country how futile it is to undertake the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act."

"I only wish," was Mr. Voorhees's retort, "that I had the power to resort to measures to settle the vote."

"I think," said Senator Palmer, in serious tones, that the declaration of the Senator from Idaho (I speak in kindness) is an appeal to barbarism. It is true as a matter of constitutional law that the only ultimate means of securing a vote is that we shall previously announce that we are engaged in the business of sitting each other out."

"We do not desire it," Mr. Teller interposed.

"No, but that is the mode of reaching results." Changing his manner and tone, Mr. Palmer added: "This is a very serious thing, and I protest not that these Senators should yield any of their rights, but I protest that the time will come and is very near at hand, when the sensible men of this country will say that the Senate must adopt some law by which it can govern itself. That is all. With that I am through."

This ended the closing scene of the day's session, and after a short time given to executive business the senate at 5:51 adjourned until to-morrow at 11 a. m.

HOUSE.

The call of the committees in the House this morning was unproductive of results; and the debate on the Federal Elections repeal bill was resumed.

Mr. Kyle of Mississippi spoke in opposition to the Federal Elections law.

Referring to the statutes of Nebraska (represented by Mr. Hainer) he read a law passed when Nebraska was a territory, restricting suffrage to "free white men." What would be thought of Mississippi if she had such a law?

Mr. Kyle, Mr. Boutelle, Mr. Ray and Mr. Murray then engaged in a brief colloquy after which Mr. Kyle went on to argue for the repeal bill.

Mr. Bowers of California in speaking against the bill, denominated (sarcastically) the election laws as a "frightful specter."

The House then at 4:55 adjourned.

EL PASO COUNTY.

A Rousing Republican Ratification Rally.

DIVIDE STATION ROBBED.

Two Masked Men Enter the Depot and Take $150 from the Cash Drawer—The Agent and Another Held Up by a Gun—No Clue.

The ratification meeting of the Republican club last evening was well attended and much enthusiasm was manifested. In addition to many of the prominent Republicans of Colorado Springs a large delegation was in attendance from outside points, and throughout the entire proceedings the utmost good humor prevailed. No set programme or formal speeches had been prepared, but the party has apparently an unlimited supply of orators who are ready to rise to any occasion, and while the speeches last evening were for the most part impromptu, they were very entertaining. Owing to the illness of one of the members, the glee club which had been expected to provide music was not in attendance, but the time was satisfactorily filled.

In the absence of President De la Vergne the meeting was called to order by Major H. E. Insley, and Colonel G. R. Buckman was appointed as secretary pro tem. There being no formal programme, the presiding officer called for suggestions, and it was proposed by Mr. Judson Bent that the meeting be thrown open to volunteer speakers. The chairman, however, called upon Commissioner Plumb, who responded very happily and entertainingly. He said it was a pleasure to speak about the Republican ticket. It was a good one. He had been placed at the business end of the county affairs and looked at the offices in a somewhat different light from most people. As county commissioner he had audited the accounts of the officers who were now candidates for re-election. During the eighteen months that Clerk Howbert had been in office all the fees had been accounted for, the expenses of the office had been paid and some five or six thousand dollars turned into the general fund. The accounts of Treasurer McCreery had been checked up for the past three years with care and minuteness and the [illegible] of yearly collections were found to be wholly exact. He had known Mr. Bowers as Sheriff for two years, and felt that El Paso had never had a Sheriff who had worked so earnestly for the interests of the county and had been so economical in carrying out the duties of his office. Assessor Irvine he knew to be a hard worker. In the past year he had revalued a large part of the county and the work had been done faithfully and well. As for the Coroner there was no one who could find when a man was dead and what killed him so quickly and economically as Dr. Marlow. In the selection of a candidate for County Commissioner he thought last Saturday's convention had made no mistake. This was a first-class county as far as intelligence and character of its inhabitants are concerned, and the decision of the 120 delegates in the county convention was to be trusted. He believed the ticket would succeed and was willing to do all in his power to bring about that result.

Mr. H. H. Grafton of Manitou was called on as the next speaker. He said some of the audience seemed to wish to set up a mourner's bench, but he never mourned under such circumstances. Although their candidate had been set down upon, they were not sore. Mr. Plumb had said that the ticket was the best that could have been nominated. He wished to say "Amen," and Mitt Irvine too. [Applause.] He wished to deny allegations that he had been made in regard to the conduct of Manitou Republicans in last fall's campaign. Manitou Republicans did their duty. He condemned the proposition to quit the Republican party and eulogized Senators Teller and Wolcott, the foremost leaders of the silver ranks. He said that he was a Free Silver Republican, a Federal Election Republican and a Protection Republican. [Applause]. The best way to further the silver cause was to educate the people. He deprecated the abuse of Sherman, Cleveland or anyone else and said that this course would win no votes. When the silver question is settled it will be settled by the educated and intelligent voters of the Republican party.

Mr. Duncan, a colored man, spoke next. He thought he had just grounds for criticizing Senator Wolcott, but no two men had ever helped Colorado so much as he and Mr. Teller, and they ought to receive the united support of the State. He had been acquainted with Finch, who was now the candidate for superintendent, in Kansas, and approved of his nomination. The colored vote of El Paso county would be solid for the Republican ticket this fall. The speech was highly entertaining and was well applauded.

County Superintendent Jackson was next called for. He said he believed the Republican ticket would be elected. He had lately traveled through the county and knew the drift of public opinion. The Populist vote last fall was the largest that that party would ever cast in the county. Many of the Republicans who went off after the false gods of Weaverism last fall were returning to the Republican party.

Mr. John Harris, "the quiet delegate from Cripple Creek," next made a characteristically humorous speech which aroused laughter and cheers in turn. Seriously speaking, he said that one effect of Populistic success in this election would be that it would be construed in the East as a repudiation of the course of the Colorado Senators. He contrasted the record of the Republican and Democratic administrations, notably in regard to the enforcement of the Sherman law. He paid his forcible respects to Yarnell and Yarnellism, and amusingly ridiculed the inconsistencies of the Democratic party.

Captain Taggart, an unschooled orator from Green Mountain Falls, said that he would propose to found three tabernacles—one to Union, one to Free Silver, and one to Protection. [Applause.] He was willing to be a sailor on the Republican ship and did not ask to be an officer.

Mr. A. Cree of Manitou asked to be excused, as Mr. Grafton had already expressed his sentiments. Mr. J. F. Humphrey also asked to be excused from speech-making. His record as a Republican spoke for itself.

Mr. I. J. Woodworth made a very interesting and eloquent speech. He began by speaking of the responsibility of the citizen voter. He was a Republican because it is the party of American principles. He believed in the American home, and to secure that there must be protection of American workingmen, and that could only be secured through the Republican party. The Republican candidates in the present contest are capable, honest, honorable business men who deserve the support of all interested in good government. The cardinal Republican principles are four: Free Silver, Political Liberty, Equal Rights and Protection to American Industries.

Mr. M. B. Irvine, candidate for Assessor, was the next speaker. He was in favor of a clean campaign with no mud slinging. It did not pay and was not necessary. He had known every office holder in the county for thirty years. All but eight of them had been Republicans, and there was no record of any misdemeanor against any of them. It was a record to be proud of. He felt assured of the success of the Republican ticket this fall.

Sheriff Bowers was next called for, but failed to put in an appearance.

Mr. Clarence O. Finch of Cripple Creek, candidate for Superintendent of Schools, said he had heard it said that this office should not be a political one. If by this was meant that its occupant should not take an interest in politics, the Republican party had made a mistake in his nomination. In his opinion however, a man who did not attend the party primaries and cast his vote in favor of good government was not fit to teach school, and much less to be superintendent. He reviewed the history of Populism in Kansas with which he was somewhat familiar, and asserted that Populism in Colorado was of the same brand. He was a Republican and had always been one, but he would rather see the State turned over to the Democracy forever than to witness the success of the Populists. The greatest injury Kansas had ever known was the success of the People's party there and like cause would produce a similar result in Colorado. In Cripple Creek the tide was already turning against the Populist ticket. The decent members of the People's party there were disgusted with the Colorado Springs contingent which ran the late convention, and were deserting the party. He predicted Republican success in Cripple Creek.

Mr. C. W. Long, the candidate for County Commissioner, responded to a call in a few brief sentences, merely saying that he was and had always been a Republican, but that he was no speech-maker.

Mr. E. H. Nelson and Captain W. A. Bray of Barry were invited to speak, but declined.

Judge Walker, the candidate for justice, when called on, surprised the meeting by moving an adjournment. So interesting had been the proceedings that few were conscious of the lateness of the hour, and at first there was no second to the motion. It was, however, seconded after a little delay by Mr. Irving Howbert and the club adjourned to meet next Tuesday evening. So closed one of the most enthusiastic, harmonious and interesting political meetings in the history of El Paso county.

TWO MASKED ROBBERS

Enter the Divide Depot and Get Away with About $150.

Special to THE GAZETTE.

DIVIDE, Colo., Oct. 3.—A bold robbery took place to-night at the Midland station here. About 9 o'clock two masked men entered the depot and got into the ticket office through the window.

The depot agent, John Kibbey, and E. R. Vaughn sat talking in the back room near the telegraph instrument, and did not observe the entrance of the men until they were upon them.

One of the robbers covered Kibbey and Vaughan with a rifle owned by Kibbey, which was standing at the side of the room, while the other went through the money drawer. He got about $150, most of which belonged to the Wells-Fargo Express company, and then they made good their escape.

Neither Kibbey nor Vaughan had anything wherewith to defend themselves and were compelled to sit in the office and see the robber go through the money drawer. They were unable to identify the men by reason of the masks that they wore and could only describe their general appearance.

The robbery was a very bold one as the travel to and from Cripple Creek is very heavy and the robbers might have been surprised at any moment. There is no clue to their whereabouts, but it is thought that they have taken across the country.

An Accomplished Clerk.

"What do you think I did this morning?" one girl asked another in a cable car on their way home from a shopping jaunt.

"Goodness knows," ejaculated the other. "You are always doing the unexpected."

"Well," continued the first girl, "I had two things on my mind that I dared not forget—a book I wanted very much and the purchase of a silk waist. So what did I do but walk into a book store, go up to the first man clerk I saw and ask, 'Do you know how much silk it takes to make a shirt waist?'"

"Oh!" gasped the other girl. "What did he say?"

"That's the funny part of it. He surveyed me with the utmost seriousness and answered promptly, 'If you want big sleeves, it will take five yards—that is, unless the silk is wide.'

"Of course I was completely stunned, for it had dawned on me what I was doing, but I made a great effort and said gratefully: 'Thank you very much—very much. Now, will you please show me Mrs. Blank's last novel?' Then I bought the book and retired in good order. There would have been no sense in exposing my feeble mindedness to that clerk, but I'd give a good deal to know how he keeps so well posted on dry goods."—Chicago Tribune.

Mysterious Music.

An account of a mysterious [illegible] sound that is frequently heard in Skookum bay, which is now going the rounds of the papers, reminds us of a still more mysterious sound that is heard during the summer months and always just before sundown, on what is called Big river, in Mendocino county, Cal. Another strange coincidence is that the locality near which the sound is heard to best advantage in both cases has the same name—viz, Cape Horn.

The sounds in the Big river case resemble the sweet strains of band music, heard plainly, though apparently from a great distance. It is impossible to locate the direction from which these sounds proceed, as when several persons are listening at once some will hear it from the air above, some from the water below and some from the shore on either side. Many learned and scientific people have striven at different times to investigate this strange phenomenon, but though the sounds have been heard for many years, the mystery remains as great to-day as at the beginning.—Willapa Post.

Question and Answer.

A rector of Eltham once gave out the words, "Who art thou?" and as he paused for a moment an officer in uniform, who had just entered church, suddenly halted, and taking the question as personal promptly replied, "Sir, I am the recruiting officer of the Sixteenth Foot, and having my wife and daughter with me should be glad to make the acquaintance of the clergy and gentry of the neighborhood."—Temple Bar.

Mitigated Wickedness.

Grandpa—Tommy, if you are real good, I'll give you two apples.

Tommy—Let me be a little bad, grandpa, and only give me one.—Texas Siftings.

Thursday of this week is Potato Day at Monument. Extensive preparations have been made for the celebration of the day. Among other arrangements the Firemen's band of this city has been engaged to furnish the music. They will go up early Thursday morning, probably on the 7:55 Santa Fe.

The Woman's Society for Christian Work will hold a business meeting at 3 p. m. on Thursday, Oct. 5, in the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church. A full attendance is especially desired as matters of importance in connection with the fair are to be decided at this meeting. A good supper will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock for 25 cents. The ladies hope for full tables, and will do all in their power to make it pleasant for strangers.

The special meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Christian Church last Sunday evening was a decided success. There was a large attendance and the essay of Miss Lillian Ray on "Missions in General," and that of Miss Mattie Lance on "Mission Work in Japan," were excellent. Two missionary recitations, one by Miss Pearl Robertson and one by Miss Mabel Stark, were very nicely rendered. The pastor of the church closed the evening's entertainment with a short address on the work of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions in Colorado.

The popular comedy "Jane" was presented at the Opera House last evening with Miss Jennie Yeamans in the title role. There was a good attendance and [illegible] to Miss Yeamans, the work of Mr. Jos. Allen as Mr. Kershaw and of Mrs Carrie Reynolds as Mrs. Pixton, the widow, was especially commendable. The piece was preceded by a laughable farce entitled "Chums." The next attraction will be Hoyt's "A Texas Steer," next Monday [illegible].

Mr. W. S. Boynton, chairman of the Republican County committee, was busy yesterday endeavoring to find suitable headquarters for the committee during the fall campaign. The campaign will not open for a week yet, but when it begins it will be lively to the end.

The annual meeting of the Orphan Bell company will be held early this month at which time directors will be elected and arrangements made for beginning work on the property once more.

The Pharmacist dispatched a car yesterday to Denver which will run as well as the rest of it. The company will soon make a change in its hoisting apparatus, putting in heavier machinery and making other extensive improvements to handle the ore from the deep workings.

All accounts from the Mattie D. of the Princess company are most favorable to that property. Paul Gerhardt and R. R. Davis were down yesterday from camp and said the rich pay streak continues to hold out in good shape. The directory held a meeting and decided to push work steadily ahead. The last car ran between $7[illegible] and $2[illegible] and the ore runs now from $3[illegible] to $[illegible] per ton.

A directors' meeting of the Del Monte company was held at the office of Mr. H. G. Lunt yesterday. The board decided to begin work again at once where it left off a few months since. The mine has been kept in good condition since the shut-down and it is expected that favorable findings will be heard in a short time. The superintendent, W. A. Hogan, passed through the city on his way to Creede yesterday, and was present at the meeting. He left last night to begin operations.

The Little Joan Mining company has made a bond and lease on the Apex lode to J. J. Hagerman for two years for $[illegible] and royalties as follows: Ten per cent. on all ores less than $25; 15 per cent. on less than $50; 25 per cent. on ores less than $100, and 33⅓ per cent. on ore over $100. The lease is for two years and the amount named as purchase price is $[illegible]. The lessee reserves the right to transfer his right, title and interest to the Isabella Gold Mining company if he sees fit.

TWO REPUBLICAN REASONS.

There are two strong reasons why the Republican ticket in this county should receive a large majority at the coming election.

One of these reasons is local, the other foreign to our own locality. The only serious rivalry to the Republican candidates is to be found among the Populists. The success of the Populists would not only be destructive of good government, but it would be a serious blow to the reputation of our county and city. The inefficiency, inexperience and rapacity so noticeable among our State officials are not only to be dreaded for themselves in a closer relation, but also for the harmful effect they would have in the various business relations with outsiders. To maintain and restore confidence in our financial integrity and common sense and to refute the accusations made against us, the Republican majority at the coming election cannot be made too large.

Another reason why the Republican majority in El Paso county needs to be large this fall is because of the influence it will have on the rest of the State. In some of the counties the field has been abandoned and no regular Republican nominations have been made. In Arapahoe, the largest of all, the party is divided in a revolt against the gang. There is a pressing need of a trumpet call from El Paso, a ringing declaration in favor of common sense politics, good government and Republican principles.

There should be no difficulty in securing the funds necessary for a railway connection with Cripple Creek. The ore is undoubtedly there and in large quantities. The roads have already been surveyed and the amount needed is not excessive. It looks like a sure thing from a capitalist's standpoint, and if it were not for the hard times communication would undoubtedly have been long ago established.

Silver Senators will use every means in their power to defeat the confirmation of John R. Preston as Director of the Mint. Mr. Preston has been a Republican, and was appointed as assistant director by President Harrison, but his hostility to silver has been so marked and so ingenious that he has commended himself to President Cleveland, to whom an enemy of silver is dearer than a Democrat. In opposing his confirmation Senators will have not only an opportunity of rebuking the man who is chiefly responsible for the nullification of the silver law, but also of showing their opinion of Mr. Cleveland's policy of subordinating party interests to his personal prejudices and desires.

Next Monday is Chicago Day at the Fair. The financial success of the great show, now assured, will make the celebration of the city all the more enthusiastic.

The silver cause has been greatly injured in the past by indiscreet friends and untoward events. To this class belong Col. A. C. Fisk and the St. Louis Bimetallic convention.

The next session of the Western Slope Congress is to be held at Glenwood Springs on Nov. 15, and will undoubtedly be as successful as other gatherings of this character have hitherto been. For the honor of the next successive meeting there is already a candidate, Delta, one of the most attractive and attractively peopled little cities of the West.

It is reported on good authority that the Divide potatoes are better this year than ever before and all that is necessary to make Potato Day a complete success is the presence of a sufficient number of eaters. Divide appetites are proverbially healthy, and every possible arrangement has been made for the reception and entertainment of guests.

The Currency Committee of the House have still under consideration the bill to repeal the tax on State banks. It is not yet certain that the bill will be recommended to the House. There are a few Democrats, it seems, who are opposed to the measure, and a few others who realize how injurious the scheme would prove to the interests of the party.

Last night's ratification meeting by the Republican Clubs was a great success. The interest and enthusiasm there manifested, and the appreciation of the issues involved in the present campaign need only to be extended throughout its duration to ensure the election of the entire Republican ticket by large majorities.

Yesterday's Republican published figures showing that the expenses of the Arapahoe county government have increased from $191,157.67 in 1880 to $622,539 in 1892. Doubtless a certain part of the increase is due to legitimate causes, but there is good ground for believing that, as The Republican asserts, extravagant and dishonest politicians are responsible for most of it. It is very much to be regretted that just at the time when the Republican party of the State needs to strengthen its organization in every way possible, anything should occur to cause a disruption of the party in the important county of Arapahoe, but under all the circumstances, the course of The Republican in bolting the regular nominations seems to be the only one open to a friend of good and honest government. The candidates nominated at the county convention are tools or leaders of the same gang which has been in power for years past. One duty which a newspaper owes to its party is to keep that party respectable. It is not always a pleasant task to do this, as The Republican may already be experiencing, but even from a partisan standpoint it is altogether the best thing to do and The Republican deserves encouragement in its efforts.

The Monument Festival.

Little Monument comes last, but she is just as big any of them. Rocky Ford has had her Watermelon Day, Grand Junction has had her Peach Day, and now Potato Day will be celebrated at Monument next Thursday, Oct. 5. All the Divide people will be there, together with liberal delegations from Denver, Pueblo and Colorado Springs and other cities and towns in the State, which know how good it is to be there.

A bake will be the feature of the day, and the inner man will be comforted as it is seldom comforted. With the potato as the crowning feature, the piece de resistance, as it were, there will be fish, flesh and fowl in abundance. Nobody will go home hungry or thirsty. Then there will be music and speeches and games. A real treat awaits everybody who attends.—[Denver Times.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

[Written for THE GAZETTE.]

A CHINESE SOAPSTONE.—A report by the British Consul at Wenchow, China, states that the steatite or soapstone industry of that vicinity employs about 2000 miners and carvers. The mines, owned and operated by twenty or thirty families, are forty-two miles from Wenchow. The galleries are driven into the sides of the hills, often to the distance of nearly a mile, and require timbering on account of the softness of the clay. The stone is soft when first extracted, hardening on exposure to the air. It is obtained in a great variety of colors, described as purple red, mottled red, black, dark blue, light blue, grey, white, eggshell white, "jade," beeswax, and "frozen"—the "jade" and "frozen" being the most valuable. Carvers buy the stone at the mine for about a cent a pound.

BESSEMER'S SUN FURNACE.—In Sir Henry Bessemer's beautiful grounds in London is to be seen the result of a curious failure of the "Grand Old Man" of metallurgy, which is described by a writer in Industries and Iron: "This is an erection which was possibly well nigh revolutionizing the world, let alone the science of metallurgy. It was to attain a temperature of nearly 60,000 degrees, and therefore fuse anything and everything; and I was assured that it would have achieved its object but for the stupid fault of an Essex lens-maker. The 'sun-furnace' consists of a wooden building 35 feet high and some 12 feet square. A few feet from the ground a large inclinable mirror for catching the rays of the sun is fixed; the rays are reflected from this mirror on to a number of powerful superimposed lenses above, which, by a simple arrangement, were to throw the enormously concentrated rays upon whatever object might be in the crucible below. Such was the mighty plan, but the manufacturer of the upper glasses, instead of turning them out uniform, made them all different, and thus the focus was spoiled. The work and anxiety in connection with this sun furnace was so great that its deviser did not care to go over the ground again, and there the peculiar furnace remains—a remarkable monument of what might have been."

A NEW SOURCE OF ALCOHOL.—Wood cellulose can be converted into sugar and used to make alcohol, but the compact texture of the wood makes the method expensive. The cellulose of peat moss, however, is now reported to have given more favorable results. The cellulose is converted into sugar by boiling the turf four or five hours in dilute sulphuric acid, when the expressed liquor is fermented with yeast and afterward distilled. The dry turf is stated to yield rather more than half as much absolute alcohol as an equal weight of potatoes containing 20 per cent. of starch.

WHERE THEY STAND.

SENATOR DUBOIS SAYS THE SILVER MEN WILL COMPROMISE.

President Cleveland on the Hawaiian Matter—Congressman Bryan on the Tariff and an Income Tax—Possible Defeat For the Administration.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—If this silver question is ever disposed of, we shall have, in addition to the elections bill and the tariff, another interesting topic of discussion in the Hawaiian matter. Just as soon as the silver bill is out of the way President Cleveland will send to congress a message concerning Hawaii accompanied by Commissioner Blount's report of his investigations at Honolulu. Though vigilant efforts are made at the White House and the state department to conceal information concerning the president's policy with reference to Hawaii, your correspondent is able to announce in general terms what that policy is. The president will recommend neither annexation nor a protectorate for Hawaii. He will maintain that it is the duty of the United States simply to restore law and order in the Sandwich islands. The report of Commissioner Blount will be cited to show that our late minister at Honolulu and the officers of our naval ships stationed there were rather too officious in their efforts to dethrone the queen and to establish the present provisional government.

The president will declare that our agents having thus connived to promote a change of government, it is our duty to permit the people of Hawaii to resume control of their own affairs and to protect life and property while they are doing it. This, in the opinion of the president, is as far as our duty goes. While he is anxious to guarantee home rule and peace and order in Hawaii, the president is not willing to leave matters in such shape that any other nation may step in and take possession of the islands. His recommendations to congress, therefore, will be in the direction already described, and he will further ask congress to adopt a policy that will in effect serve notice upon the nations of the earth that the United States would be unwilling to see Hawaii fall into the possession of a foreign power.

Silver Men Willing to Compromise.

But when will the silver question be disposed of? Week after week goes by, and no vote is reached. Apparently we are as far from a solution of the problem now as we were a week ago, when we started in on a series of speeches which have filled a large volume of Congressional Records with words and figures. Among the young men who have come to the front on the silver side of this contest is Senator Dubois of Idaho. He has won quite a reputation during the present session of congress as Mr. Teller's most active and useful lieutenant. When asked by your correspondent to define the position of the silver men, Mr. Dubois replied:

"We stand just where we have always stood. We know the bill cannot pass the senate as it is drawn at present, and all our efforts have been put forth to show the other side that this is true. Just as soon as they become convinced of their inability to secure a vote we anticipate they will come to us with offers of a compromise. In my opinion, the day when this will occur is now near at hand. We are willing to accept any fair and reasonable compromise measure, anything that will give some promise of a future policy that does not involve total abandonment of silver. We are willing to accept the Faulkner proposition, the Squire proposition or anything that will not put an immediate stop to the purchase of silver. We would even be willing to accept the present bill if its operation were postponed two or three years, so that our people may have notice of the suspension of silver purchases and be able to govern themselves accordingly. Suddenly to close our mines means ruin throughout the west. No notice was ever given us of the intention of the Democratic party to do anything of this sort. It is different with the tariff question, because every manufacturer interested in the tariff had his notice in the platform adopted by the Democrats at Chicago and in the result of the election of what he might expect in the way of tariff changes. All we want is fair treatment, and we propose to stand here until we get it. The present indications are we shall not have to remain here very long."

Mr. Bryan Talks For Income Tax.

Another young man who has attained much prominence of late is Congressman Bryan of Nebraska. Though now serving only his second term, he is in the front rank on the Democratic side of the house and occupies a position which may mean strong gle for through eight or ten years of service. He is a member of the ways and means committee and one of the leaders therein. He said to your correspondent today: "I have not a doubt we shall make a tariff bill that will be a measure of genuine reform. We are going to cut all along the line, especially on raw materials and on those articles in which monopoly exists. In order to raise more revenue I believe we shall adopt an income tax, placing a graduated tariff upon all incomes exceeding $10,000 per year. While I am not sure we have a majority for this in the committee, there is undoubtedly a majority for it in the house, and I believe it will be put in the bill. The poor men of the country favor an income tax, and we are here to legislate in behalf of the masses of the people."

Compromise Probable This Week.

In another week the bill to repeal the federal elections laws will be passed in the house and go over to the senate. If the silver bill is not sooner disposed of in that body, an effort will be made to take up the elections bill as the regular order of business, thus sidetracking the silver bill. Before this time comes, a compromise is probable. The leaders of the repeal side are very reluctant to have the battle continue until the elections bill makes its appearance, for many Democratic senators who are in favor of repeal would not like to vote against taking up the bill to repeal the federal elections laws, which is very popular among their constituents. Some of the southern senators who nominally favor the repeal bill do so with very little earnestness and would be glad of an opportunity to sidetrack that troublesome measure by bringing forward a bill in which their constituents are so much more interested, and on which they are united. If the repeal leaders allow such a motion to be made, it will probably carry, and that will mean defeat for the administration and for the repeal cause. The hope of the repeal managers is in securing action during the present week, and how they are to secure action without making concessions to the other side is more than any one can tell.

Contempt of Court.

The following once took place in Williamsburg township, N. C. In justice's court a prisoner was charged with the larceny of a bottle of beer from a barroom. He objected to being tried before the justice and asked that his case be heard by some other J. P. The court demanded his grounds of objection, to which the prisoner replied that he did not propose to be tried for stealing beer from a barroom before a magistrate who was in the habit of dead beating for drinks around the barrooms of that township. To this the court with great dignity and emphasis replied: "You accuse me of doing that? Then you are a liar, and I fine you $5 for contempt of court."—Green Bag.

A BOOM AT THE FAIR.

THE 200,000 MARK IN DAILY ADMISSIONS OCCASIONALLY PASSED.

Indiana, the Irish and the Knights of Honor Have Grand Days—Dahomey Gets Bigger Rations of Liquor and Bonds. The Anthropological Building.

WORLD'S FAIR, Oct. 2.—[Special.]—And still we linger. There was a time we didn't think we should, but now we know that we have a real boom. The alleged melancholy days have come, but they are the liveliest of the year for the great storm the Iowans brought with them was followed by clear, cool and bracing weather, and though every third day may be considered bad the people continue to crowd all the buildings. The total of paid admissions for last week was 1,[illegible], and this week's will evidently beat it, for Indiana's astonishing [illegible] took the city, and there was a great multitude in the grounds, probably equal to or exceeding that of Illinois day. On Sportsmen's day the paid admissions were 190,171; on State Commissioners' day they fell to 170,559, but on Knights of Honor day they bounded up to 213,152. Indiana has since done well, and Ireland did very much better that once more Chicago is betting on a total of 20,000,000 paid admissions for the entire fair.

It was thought that Irish enthusiasm had far outrun probability when they promised 40,000 men in line and 200,000 paid admissions for the day, but when Lord Mayor Shanks of Dublin, with the lady mayoress and many other dignitaries, including two members of parliament, arrived, and when it was made certain that all the orators promised were here, we accepted the draft on our faith and figured the total admissions with unusual interest. The lord mayor and party will remain here nearly a week longer, and many special affairs in their honor are arranged.

Nobility an Everyday Affair.

Professor Thomas Moore, director of the Jesuit choir of Chicago, has been for some time drilling his little army of singers, made up of volunteers from many musical societies, for that occasion, and the fireworks were of course Irish from start to finish. There were brilliant portraits of Grattan, O'Connell, Emmet, Wolfe Tone, Marshals Nugent of Austria, MacMahon of France and O'Donnell of Spain, Charles Carroll, Barry Sullivan, Shields, Meagher, Sheridan, John Boyle O'Reilly and Colonel Mulligan. The French also are making quite a display of late, as 35 artisans were sent by the government and 20 by the municipality of Paris to study the industrial and artistic features of the fair and city. They are regular laborers, too, not mere agitators, and look as little like the alleged erratics of Paris as one can imagine. Last of all, Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria is said to be on the grounds, but if he is very few Americans know him. We have had so many princes and such gorgeousness that we don't mind a few dukes.

Chicago continues to add to her many attractions for the 9th, and half a million souvenir tickets have been printed. Florida insists that she, too, will be in it on that day, though few people will know it. But in one respect she holds over Chicago—she has a real live tribe of her original aborigines, and at their head Asse-he-ho-lar, or Black Drink, their chief, commonly called Osceola and grandson of the great Osceola, who was truly a noble Indian, though Captain Mayne Reid has almost reduced him to a mere romantic myth. In the procession will be representations of De Soto and Ponce de Leon on their march, the mayor of Jacksonville will orate, and Professor King will make a balloon ascension. In the aboriginal line Chicago seems to have found no live Iroquois, or even a Winnebago, in reach, but the Iroquois club has agreed to do its best on a [illegible] of the Miami Nation, which but 100 years ago occupied all the region from Chicago river to Mad river in Ohio, the latest report is that only 40 families remain (that is, of pure Indians), and it is likely that their presence here would be mournful rather than inspiring.

Dahomey May Dance.

I cannot learn that any great preparations are made for other special days in October, of which the most important are Mexico's, on the 4th; Rhode Island's, 5th; Polish, 7th; North Dakota's, 10th; Connecticut's, 11th; Minnesota's, 13th, and Ancient Order of United Workmen, 25th. All this time the far foreign folks of the plaisance continue to amuse us with their squabbles and reconciliations and threats to leave and break up the show. The Dahomey folks shut their gate and packed their goods to leave, but Manager Pine was firmly told that he could not remove anything till after 10 p. m. Oct. 30. Director General Davis then granted a special permit for the negroes to dance and howl on the wall to attract attention, and each of the 65 is to have a medal at the close. They have forced their manager to pay higher wages, and among the additions to their daily rations are 12 gallons of claret, 5 cases of Chicago beer and 2½ gallons of whisky. They use it all and as much more as they can smuggle in, and if I may judge from their howling it operates on them much the same as on our own natives.

A Few Ologies.

And speaking of natives, I observe that the Palace of Anthropology is recently attracting much more attention. Its location in the southeast corner of the grounds probably caused many to miss it who had but a few days to stay, but it is now crowded. The great Siberian mammoth, restored according to Waterhouse Hawkins, is oddly enough the subject of most criticism and skepticism, and at least half the visitors regard it as a "fake." Oddly enough, I say, for it so happens that that famous mammoth is almost the only one of which there can be no possible doubt, for it was taken from the frozen earth of the Lena delta entire in bone, flesh, skin and hair, as it had lived. The "cold storage system" of that region was so great a success that the meat of the mammoth was eaten by the dogs when uncovered. The title of the building is not comprehensive enough, for it contains the exhibits in anthropology, geology, ethnology and paleontology. Next to the mammoth and mastodons in popular interest are the skeleton of the whale—and it is the real being—and the imitations or reproductions of the hadrosaurus, megaloden robustus and other grim monsters of that dreadful time when, apparently, the Infinite allowed nature to run at random and all creation was in a chronic state of delirium tremens.

A Baker's Dozen.

There have been various origins assigned to the phrase, "a baker's dozen," signifying 13, but there is only one generally regarded as authentic. Formerly in London, when a small retail dealer bought bread of the baker, for every dozen loaves purchased he was given an extra loaf as his profit, from which circumstance comes "a baker's dozen."

ONE TRIP CURED HIM.

How a Young Man Changed His Mind About Being a Brakeman.

[Special Correspondence.]

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 2.—"It makes me shudder," said a prosperous looking young man to me here today, "every time I see a brakeman run along the top of the cars of a freight train. It reminds me of my boyish desire to go to work on the railroad as a freight train hand and how I was cured. My uncle was a freight conductor of 10 or 15 years' experience, and I, being sick of farm life, often urged him to take me on as a member of his crew.

"As I was a relative he flatly refused at first, adding that I wouldn't like the business anyway if I got a chance to try it. I was so importunate that after a talk with the superintendent of the division he finally promised me the first vacancy. After some months of waiting it came, and right proud was I when I started out on my first trip from here to Susquehanna. It was in the summer, and the weather was fine and I laughed to myself to think that my uncle had thought I wouldn't like the work. The trip was not completed before I had found that he was quite right in his estimate of my likes and dislikes.

"We had just passed Corning and were rounding a sharp curve when we passed a long train of coal 'jimmies' going west. I was standing on the top of one of the box cars, of which our train was composed, when I saw a brakeman on the coal train sway as the train lurched because of the curve, lose his footing and fall headlong under the wheels of the train. Of course both trains were stopped, and both crews gathered about the body of the poor fellow. I was horrified to find that he had fallen in such a way that his head had been crushed and severed from his body.

"He was, like myself, a green man making his first trip, and when we got to Susquehanna I told my uncle that I had had enough and would be greatly obliged to him if he would get some other man. The farm seemed like paradise to me after that experience, and I have never been sorry since then that I did not persevere in my desire to be a freight train man.

"That was 20 years ago, and I suppose every one on the line has forgotten the incident, but I haven't, and I don't suppose I ever shall." LEWIS WILTON.

Couldn't Confuse the Turtle.

A small boy in Massachusetts brought home a mud turtle from a pond a quarter of a mile away, noticed that whenever set free the turtle set off in a bee line direction toward the pond. The boy tried to confuse the turtle in every way he could devise, but the turtle was too smart for him and always started off in the right direction as if he knew where he was going and was bound to get there in the quickest time possible. And now the boy has puzzled the whole township by demanding to know how that turtle knew in what direction his ancestral pond lay.

Roofs In the Tropics.

In the interior of Ceylon the natives finish walls and roofs with a paste of slaked lime, gluten and alum, which glazes and is so durable that specimens three centuries old are now to be seen. On the Malabar coast the flat bamboo roofs are covered with a mixture of cow dung, straw and clay. This is a poor conductor of heat and not only withstands the heavy rains to a remarkable degree, but keeps the hut cool in hot weather. In Sumatra the native women braid a coarse cloth of palm leaves for the edge and top of the roof. Sharks' skins form the roofs of dwellings in the Andaman Islands. The Malays of Malacca, Sumatra and Java have a roofing of attap, pieces of palm leaf wickerwork, about 4 feet by 2 in size and an inch thick, which are laid like shingles and are practically waterproof. The Arabs of the East Indies make a durable roofing of slaked lime, blood and cement. The [illegible] sometimes use old sails made proof against water, mold and insects by paradin and corrosive sublimate—for temporary roofs.—Waverley Magazine.

HER INTERESTING CAREER.

A Venerable Lady Who Has Danced With the Poet Holmes.

Domiciled in a handsome but [illegible] house at Hoboken, that old fashioned suburb of New York on the high road to [illegible], one may find Mrs. Lucy Williams Hawes, a matron of fourscore and [illegible], a delightful gentlewoman, who can indulge [illegible] years with reminiscences [illegible] ning or descant upon the [illegible] of Talmage's latest sermon, [illegible] tell you how her emotions have been stirred by Rachel and Eleanora Duse, who recollects Tyrone Power and the elder Booth and has seen Salvini, who can recall Lola Montez and Fanny Ellsler as she watches the gyrations of Carmencita; who knew Irving, Emerson, Hawthorne, Whittier and Bancroft and takes a lively interest in Howells and Whitcomb Riley. If perchance, lost in the thought of a bygone day, her still deft fingers glide over the keyboard of a Steinway grand attuned to the melodies she learned 70 years ago, she will tell you of the time when she sat entranced by the songs of Jenny Lind or was held spellbound among a bevy of matinee girls at the last Paderewski recital.

MRS. LUCY WILLIAMS HAWES.

Mrs. Hawes was born in New Bedford in 1812 of pilgrim and Quaker ancestry and received the best education New England afforded in those days, an education that did not cease when she closed the doors of the young ladies' seminary behind her.

As one sits in her drawing room the crack of a whip and a tally-ho [illegible] past bearing a bunch of beauty and fashion for Tuxedo festivities. Then perhaps Mrs. Hawes will tell about that ball in the town hall at New Bedford when she was a belle, full 60 years ago.

In those days there were no discussions about decollete corsages, but all dresses were made with low necks and short sleeves, with very long white kid gloves, and feet daintily shod in silken hose, with frail slippers of satin and the hair dressed high with a "feronniere" crowning the forehead. The beaux were resplendent in coats of blue broadcloth, with bright buttons and light colored trousers made very tight and strapped under the slippers, which were ornamented with fine buckles, while ruffled shirts, high neckcloths and hair curled at the barber's completed the toilet.

It is interesting to listen to Mrs. Hawes' description of her visit to the executive mansion when Mrs. Fillmore figured as the first lady of the land. She says the Fillmores found the White House in a miserable condition with no suggestion of home, but, after the president's wife had the carpet in the best living room taken up and cleaned, sent to Buffalo for her piano and harp, she lessened the dimensions of the spacious apartment with screens, and by many feminine devices succeeded in creating a degree of coziness that was grateful. The old black cook, who could prepare a state dinner for 25 people in a huge fireplace filled with hooks and cranes, had the system of his kitchen entirely disordered by the introduction of a small hotel range, and the president was obliged to make a journey to the patent office to inspect the model and demonstrate the modus operandi of the disturbing innovation.

One day Mrs. Fillmore expressed her desire to see the Aztec children, and in response to her request they were summoned to the White House. When they took their leave, the president's wife bestowed upon each a bright new gold dollar, and Mr. Barnum, who was exhibiting them, caused the papers of the following day to state that Mrs. Fillmore had presented them with necklaces of enormous value. To a social festivity that winter came Mme. Bodisco in a gown of corn colored brocade, with the black bugles of her bertha so fine they appeared like lace, and a wreath of wild roses surmounting her brow; Mrs. Riggs, with her coronet of auburn hair; Miss Cutts, who married Stephen A. Douglas, and a host of matrons in moire antique and brocade, caps of blond with marabout plumes and flowers, high waists with vests and flowing undersleeves of rich embroidery or lace. Mrs. Fillmore wore a costume of red velvet, a fabric rarely seen in those days, and her daughter Abigail blue silk and white lace, festooned with water lilies.

Mrs. Hawes' birthday occurs on the same day as, but three years later than, that of Oliver Wendell Holmes, and she relates that more than a half century ago she danced with the Autocrat around the old elm on the green at Harvard at her brother's commencement, sipped cream with him in Winthrop place and walked with him later on the shores of the Nahant. Recalling the circumstances under which she first heard the great Dr. Channing preach, she says:

"He had a look of sweetness, blended with an air of patient determination, as though he bore the cross of an unpopular faith which in time would bless the earth."

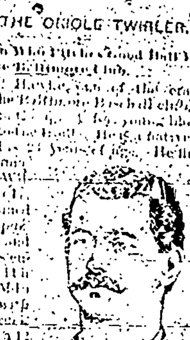

It is only when Mrs. Hawes recalls from her well stored mind such memories of the past that one can realize her age. If women are as old as they look, then it would seem as if Mrs. Hawes were far younger than the family Bible and her reminiscences would indicate, for there is nothing in her bearing, manner or speech to indicate the octogenarian.

ADA CRISP.

HAWKE, THE ORIOLE TWIRLER.

A Young Man Who Pitches Good Ball For the Baltimore Club.

William V. Hawke, one of the crack pitchers of the Baltimore Baseball club, is a [illegible] young [illegible]. He is a native of [illegible], and is 24 years of age. He first played with amateur teams [illegible] Wilmington, D.C. Where he attained [illegible] as a pitcher, and this led to his engagement with the Elkton (Md.) club. While with this club he struck out 20 men in a 12 inning game [illegible] 1891, at Middletown, Del., and retired 19 of [illegible] Navy team in a game played Aug. 19, 1891, at Elkton. These two pitching feats were remarkable, but were again surpassed Aug. 12, 1891, at Roanoke City, Md., when Hawke pitched for the home team in a 13 inning game with the Virginia team and succeeded in striking out 20 men. His first regular professional engagement was with the Reading club of the Pennsylvania State league, with which he in 1892 pitched in a few games before he was claimed by the St. Louis club.

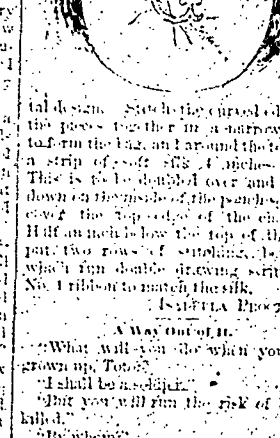

WILLIAM V. HAWKE.

With the St. Louis Hawke pitched in 11 championship games, a majority of which terminated in victory for his team. He commenced 1893 as one of the [illegible] St. Louis club, but was released and then signed by the Baltimore club, with which he has done excellent work.

Tobacco Pouch.

To make a tobacco pouch like the one illustrated, cut two pieces of [illegible] chamois the shape of an oval with the smaller end cut off about 3½ inches across at the widest part. In the middle of one piece embroider an initial or monogram surrounded by an ornamental design. Stitch the curved edges of the pieces together in a harness seam to form the bag, and around the top sew a strip of soft silk 4 inches wide. This is to be doubled over and faced down on the inside of the pouch so as to cover the top edge of the chamois. Half an inch below the top of the silk put two rows of stitching, between which run double drawing strings of No. 1 ribbon to match the silk.

ISABELLA PROCTOR.

A Way Out of It.

"What will you do when you are grown up, Toto?"

"I shall be a soldier."

"But you will run the risk of being killed."

"By whom?"

"By the enemy."

Toto, after a moment's reflection: "Then I'll be the enemy."—Tribuna.

A Great Snap.

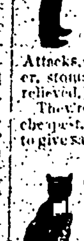

Ruggles (meeting him after many years)—How are you, McPelt? Still running a meat market?

McPelt—No, Ruggles, I made a dead failure at butchering. I guess it wasn't in me.

"Sorry to hear it. What are you doing now?"

"Oh, I'm doing well enough. I am practicing medicine. I'm the only doctor there is in the place."—Chicago Tribune.

If you need anything in drugs, patent medicines, soaps, perfumery, brushes, mineral waters, wines and liquors, call at Tamm & Arcularius. Largest stock in town. Goods delivered free anywhere in the city.

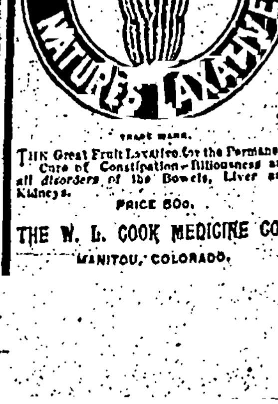

A FULL STOMACH ought to cause you no discomfort whatever. If it does, though—if there's any trouble after eating—take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're a perfect and convenient vest-pocket remedy. One of these tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules at a dose regulates and corrects the entire system. Sick or Bilious Headaches, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and permanently cured.

They're the smallest, easiest to take, cheapest, and best. They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or money is returned.

[CATA]R[RH] is perfectly, permanently, positively cured by Doctor Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The proprietors of this medicine prove that by their offer. It's $500 cash for a case of Catarrh which they cannot cure. By all druggists, 50 cents.

HIGH CARNIVAL AT ST. LOUIS.

THE METROPOLIS OF THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY AGAIN PRESENTS A PROGRAMME

Of Fall Festivities that for brilliancy and variety outshines the carnival cities of the old world.

Paris, the most magnificent city on either continent, has for ages held the proud title of "the premier carnival city of the world." However, during the last ten or twelve years an American rival of no mean pretensions has contested for that high honor, and to-day St. Louis holds what Paris so reluctantly relinquished, the title of "the carnival city of the two continents."

Not content with the successful exhibitions of previous years, the Autumnal Festivities Association has arranged a programme for 1893 that for brilliancy and variety will be difficult to improve upon. The first of the great attractions, the St. Louis Exposition, will throw its doors open to the public Sept. 6th and continue until Oct. 21st. The world-renowned Sousa's Band has been engaged by the management, which, in itself is a sufficient inducement to crowd the magnificent building during every concert.

Special attention has been paid to the street illuminations, and on the evenings of August 12th, 17th, 24th and 31st, September 7th, 14th, 21st and 28th, and October 2d, 5th, 12th and 19th the most magnificent display yet attempted will greet the eye of the fortunate visitor, electricity playing a prominent part. The evening of October 3d the Veiled Prophet and his followers will parade through the principal thoroughfares, and immediately after the great ball, which has received considerable prominence throughout the world, will be held.

The 33d great St. Louis Fair and Zoological Gardens, October 2d to 7th, will be the crowning week of the carnival season. This institution has no peer, and is known in every land where the footprints of civilization exist. The Missouri Pacific Railway and Iron Mountain Route being distinctly St. Louis lines, and having at all times the interests of the city in mind, have made a remarkably low round trip rate from all points on the entire system to St. Louis and return during the festivities.

For further information in regard to rates, route, limit of tickets and for a copy of the fall festivities programme, address nearest ticket agent in your territory, or H. C. Townsend, G. P. and T. Agt., St. Louis.

REMARKABLE DISTRIBUTION OF Standard Books!

AT NOMINAL PRICES,

And that can only be made possible by our co-operation for the benefit of our readers. These books cannot be obtained at less than wholesale price in any other way than as described below.

We take pleasure in announcing to our readers that we have made a contract whereby we can furnish them with standard books at absolutely less than wholesale prices. The books which we offer each week are by world-famous writers, and are printed from absolutely new type made specially for these works. The books are bound by an entirely new process which does away with the old style of thread or wire binding. Each leaf is bound into the book separately and amalgamated with the whole, allowing the book to lie perfectly flat when open, giving ease and comfort to the reader.

Each week we will announce a new book. Save your coupons as we will be sure to announce books which you will not fail to order.

The company in this city have received $230, $633, and $1,400 for the past three months in royalties. It is expected to double the latter figure this month. The Union Gold Mining company, owners of the lode, is flourishing and owes not a dollar.

A Texas Steer.

The next attraction to appear at the opera house will be Hoyt's merriest and most popular comedy, "A Texas Steer," on next Tuesday evening. Hoyt has never written anything for the stage so consistently and uproariously funny as "A Texas Steer." Given its initial metropolitan production over three years ago, this satire on Washington and Texan domestic and political life was forced from the stage of the Bijou theater, New York City, after a run of over five months, to meet the clamor of out of town managers who held contracts for its production in their respective cities. The play will be presented here by the original company headed by Tim Murphy as "Maverick Brander," and other members who have all been seen in this city on previous occasions.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Money on call easy, ranging from 2 to 3, last loan at 2½, and closing offered at 2½. Prime mercantile paper 7@8 per cent.

The total transactions at the stock exchange to-day was only slightly above the one hundred thousand share mark. At the opening Louisville and Nashville and New England were notably firm. After the opening the market weakened, Louisville and Nashville declining 1¼ to 49½. In the late trading the market improved and at the same time business picked up a little. The industrials led the rise but just near the close the grangers loomed into prominence, B. & Q. and St. Paul being particularly strong. Reading, Louisville and Nashville and Union Pacific also developed strength at this time. Rumors of impending receiverships for the last named and other roads found little credence in well informed quarters. The record of transactions shows sales of listed stocks of 78,282 shares and of unlisted stocks 27,911 shares.
